

HISTORICAL IMMERSION IN CORFU, GREECE

What it's like receiving a GE history credit in Greece

- Visit the historical landmarks and sites that you are studying in class. This enriched my learning experiences about European history, the roots of democracy and Greek architecture
- Class units are taught by different professors. These professors came from Corfu, Athens and England to teach us different lessons on Ancient Greece, Christianity, Byzantium, the Medieval World; Renaissance; discoveries, early modern Europe, Enlightenment; and modern Greece, 20th century totalitarianism and democracy

Program Name: Introduction to Western Tradition and Contemporary Issues program in Corfu, Greece from May 2nd - June 1st

Motivations to Study Abroad

My goals to study abroad were to gain a global mindset and meet more OSU students. Overall, I've been fascinated by Greece, their culture, welcoming community and also political unrest.

I studied Greek and modern day European history at Ionian University during the Maymester.

With 20 other Ohio State students and led by OSU faculty, I visited historical sites in Corfu, Vergina, Ioannina and Athens, Greece. Along the way, I grew as an individual and became a more global citizen.

Personal Growth and Transformations

- I increased my independence and confidence in traveling and decision making while gaining interpersonal skills
- I advanced my learning and writing abilities by adapting to different teaching styles and being actively present in class
- I grew as a communicator and leader by learning how to strategically use my words as well as my body language to overcome language barriers

Favorite Parts

I created bonds with people across the world and immersed myself in Greek culture! I loved the food such as gyros, dolmades, spanakopita and moussaka. I went running in Corfu, danced to Greek music and even swam in the Mediterranean Sea. I discovered the debt crisis in Greece, their poor sewage system and quality of tap water. Although this program was only four weeks, I made life long friends at OSU and in Greece.
